

Project Description: The Driver

What is the premise? The story is a psychological thriller about the feeling of being trapped in a loop. It begins with a sudden mechanical failure on a deserted road, forcing the protagonist to choose between the perceived safety of their vehicle and the chilling mystery of a nearby house. The premise explores the idea that no matter which path is taken, the character is being led toward an inevitable confrontation with a supernatural presence.

Who are the characters?

- The Protagonist (You): A lone driver trying to get home, representing the player's own perspective.
- The Presence: An unseen antagonist that never fully appears but manifests through whispers on the radio and the sound of ticking clocks.

Where does it take place? The story takes place in two primary locations:

1. The Desolate Road: A pitch-black, isolated stretch of highway that creates a feeling of vulnerability.
2. The Clock House: An old, Victorian-style home filled with hundreds of ticking clocks, creating a claustrophobic and eerie atmosphere where time feels distorted.

What are the kinds of choices you will provide to your user? The choices focus on Risk vs. Safety. I provide the user with:

- Directional Choices: Deciding whether to investigate the house or stay in the car.
- Action-Based Choices: Deciding whether to confront a noise (looking in the mirror) or flee to a new location.
- Psychological Choices: Choosing between opening a final door or retreating, leading to two distinct endings: a "jump-scare" disappearance or a psychological "dream-loop" revelation.
